EARTHRISE - Lyrics

Earthrise on a dead and dusty plain
A precious diamond shining in the dark
Your eyes begin to water and your chest just aches in pain
All you know held in that little spark

A mother like no other carried us for oh so many years
But that blue has turned a different hue
And no longer seems so crystal clear

Earthrise like a lighthouse in the black of night
Brings us home from the Great Beyond
I see no nations down there or why they have to fight
The same water air and land joins everyone.

A mother like no other, we've beaten down and turned our back upon
And that hue so blue has disappeared from view
Once beautiful her face is turning brown

All the teeming billions have run right out of luck
We didn't think about the cost to turn that extra buck.
We've all missed the chances to save our home and stay
Now bereft, no options left, we'll have to sail away

Earthrise
Earthrise
The Earth can rise no more
